Dear Chairman Cartwright and Ranking Member Aderholt:

As the Subcommittee considers the Commerce Justice Science FY2022 Appropriations Bill, we write to support $75 million in funding to expand federal programs that provide legal representation for the thousands of immigrants, asylum seekers, families, and other vulnerable individuals who face federal immigration court removal proceedings each year without the advice of counsel. As you know, last year’s House bill, H.R. 7617, included $15 million for the same purpose.

Our nation’s immigration laws are complex and confusing, and the severe consequence of deportation is life-changing for individuals and families. Despite these facts, the federal government does not guarantee legal counsel for people in removal proceedings. Without legal counsel, it is nearly impossible for people in removal proceedings, who typically do not speak English, to understand the immigration system or how to apply for humanitarian and other legal relief.

Legal representation is the most determinative factor in ensuring people facing removal have a fair day in immigration court. If represented by counsel, people are five times more likely to obtain legal relief compared to those who are unrepresented.\(^1\) People who are detained during proceedings are 10.5 times more likely to succeed in their cases when represented.\(^2\) Despite the critical role of legal counsel, nationwide more than 40 percent of those appearing in immigration court go unrepresented by counsel, and a staggering 70 percent of detained persons face proceedings without counsel.\(^3\)

Allowing greater access to legal counsel will help the court system operate more efficiently and effectively. Studies of immigration court data over the past decade have found that people represented by counsel appear in court over 96 percent of the time. Additionally, legal representation avoids delays in court and saves time that judges typically spend explaining procedures to unrepresented people.

Currently the federal government operates pilot legal representation programs that serve two populations: unaccompanied children and individuals with mental disabilities. We support additional funding for the Executive Office for Immigration Review to expand legal representation programs to other vulnerable populations including, but not limited to, asylum seekers, families, people who speak rare languages, and those deprived of their liberty while awaiting their court hearings. We believe that this funding will help ensure fundamental fairness, and allow immigrants facing removal a fair hearing.

Thank you for your consideration of this request and we look forward to working with you to ensure due process for all individuals.

Sincerely,
